Preface

To fully understand what this document represents, I think it is necessary to introduce myself. I am an intelligent young man, I do not have diagnosed mental problems, I have good social relationships, I am not shy, just antisocial. The closest colleagues I had described me as calm, intelligent, apathetic, adaptable and centered in my convictions. I lived with my father for most of my life, because my parents were separated and did not have any mutual feelings. Since I was little I felt superior to others, I harbored a disgust and hatred for groups I lived with, I simply did not accept being in the same place as them, I felt that I deserved more, or they deserved less, what mattered was being on top.

I spent a large part of my life on the internet, where I was able to acquire all the knowledge expressed in this manifesto. I was never intensely interested in any virtual game, as it bored me, so I spent most of my time watching humorous videos and chatting in online communities, where my contempt was no different from what I felt for the communities I lived in. I began to have homicidal tendencies over time, a hatred grew within me that I was unable to contain, and when I was no longer able to lead an ordinary life, I began to plan an attack. I simply became frustrated to the point of reaching insanity.

In an online group, I met someone who was similar to me, so similar that we talked about the same thing at the same time. We were so in sync that people in the same community said that I had 70% of his personality, while at the same time, stupid coincidences like having the same t-shirt, sending the same sticker at the same time, making jokes of similar content at the same time, etc., happened. However, there was something that was not the same, something disproportionate in which we were not in sync: his knowledge was absurd, he was simply the most intelligent person I have ever talked to, and that motivated me to study, study a lot, but not school subjects, I studied historical revisionism, economics and politics. Little by little, I caught up with him in terms of knowledge, since he himself would dedicate some time - usually when he was about to pass out from being so drunk - to teach me something.

It turned out that we also had the same tendencies, and that we were planning the same thing, from that moment on, an epic duo had just been formed. He discouraged me from doing what I wanted, he said that I had to live more because I was young, but I didn't take his wishes into account, I would do it regardless of anything.

We continued talking for a year, until he decided to put his plan into practice, and he failed, he failed to the point of becoming a laughing stock. I cannot describe how disappointed I was, and it grew even more when I saw him being reduced to just another sick person. However, his failure bore fruit for me; I saw that, in order to succeed in my goals, I would need to elaborate my plans much more.

This man I am talking about is Henrique Lira Trad, and I emphasize that it was not he who made me commit a holy act, I, and no one else, decided that it would be a convenient idea.

I only spoke about all this to make clear the origin of my knowledge, and how Henrique was an essential person for this manifesto to be written, and I even dare say that, if he wrote something with the same purpose, it would be of superior quality.

With that understood, here is everything I was able to write in a short period of time before I died, a summary of information that I find too useful not to show to whoever is left, it is not perfect, it is far from being perfect, but it is what I managed to do.

Here, I also point out the many flaws of capitalism, such as the monopoly that destroys the small trader and increasingly lowers the quality of the product or service that his company offers; I point out how harmful industrial society has been to the mental and physical health of the world's population; I point out the devaluation of worker and the abuses he suffers; I point out the many other problems that postmodernism brought with it.

Postmodernism is the invention of men who profit from the ignorance and foolishness of the people. It destroys our culture and our identity, and consequently, divides our nation, fueling conflicts among our people and dividing us along sexual, gender, race and class lines. We stop seeing ourselves as similar, antagonizing those who differ from X social group.

I immortalize and synthesize my ideas and ideologies through this manifesto, where I seek to explain and warn about the great flaws in the postmodern world and point out a solution for them, and so, here is a document about Postmodernism and its consequences in our nation

Chapter 1: Society.

In ancient Greece, freedom was not about doing whatever you wanted or could, but rather about having control over yourself and freeing yourself from the primitive desires and instincts that bestialized man and subverted his morals and character. Our dirty desires are like chains that bind us to what regresses humanity, however, this concept has been gradually lost and increasingly forgotten. Nowadays, there is a complete bestialization of freedom, and the notion of freedom of a nation directly implies its structure. Someone who thinks that acts against modesty deserve to be normalized is a hostage to his lowest interests, he is chained to immorality.

Freedom goes hand in hand with culture, since it establishes traditional values, preventing the normalization and preaching of abominations. It acts as a filter of morality, of what is normal, of what is tolerable and of what is abominable in a society. Therefore, culture must be passed on at home, in educational institutions, in newspapers, films and books so that the filter does not gradually get lost and always remains the opinion of the majority.

If culture is the opinion of the majority, there are no gaps for weeds that want to shove their degenerative opinions down children's throats to emerge. These weeds are mostly liberals and leftists - by leftist, we mean: Progressives, LGBTs, liberals, feminists, minorities and activists, although not all of them on this list can be classified per se - they are fragile and get offended very easily because they think they are inferior and more incapable than those who have achieved success in their lives, as well as creating several brutal movements and, in particular, I highlight feminism as one of the most harmful and damaging leftist movements ever created, because it takes on the pain of all other minorities and, consequently, maximizes the damage caused by each of them.

Women have never suffered such great objectification, not by another group, but by themselves encouraged by a second party - I will talk about this group later - and this culminates in women who do not know the value of their own virginity and body, increasing the number of "dysgenics" catastrophically - with dysgenics/digenics we understand uncontrolled sex and the opposite of eugenics - and, as a consequence of the first item, paternal abandonment.

The family structure is what will shape the child, with the father being the most important member for the formation of the individual's character. Therefore, the lack of a father figure has a high chance of culminating in a child: without character, with mental problems (mainly anxiety and depression), with problems following rules, with a greater tendency to commit crimes, with a greater tendency to commit suicide, with a greater tendency to become trans and have other similar illnesses (homosexuality, lesbianism, asexuality), with sexual immaturity and many others. All of this is hidden by those in power, because it is convenient for the subject to grow up poor, stupid and unstructured, as it is easier to control.

Feminism has become such a large, far-reaching group that to publicly oppose it in a public place is to be verbally lynched, and that leads to moral decline.

feminine, since every woman is a feminist or tends to become one, and there are no exceptions anymore, every woman is extremely degenerate whether you think it's good or not. Women have lost the notion of their value, now they exchange themselves for pettiness, base their lives on aberrative ways of living and don't care at all about the ideological catastrophe they are causing.

Single mothers, for the most part, are unable to contain their children's delusions and encourage them. They are the majority in educational spaces, as they themselves are already naturally childish and imitate childish behavior in a legitimate and faithful way, and this is evolutionary.

Women have always needed to draw attention, evolutionarily speaking, their strength was not enough to contain primitive evils, so they screamed and cried for help from a man, and this and other issues led to mental and behavioral differences between men and women that are never taken into account when questioning gender roles. The fact is that each animal group evolved to do something, and this will not change in men and women, so here we refute the idea that men and women are equal, as well as the idea that women should work, provide goods and take care of other matters that are the responsibility of men. With all this, let it be clear: The woman should take care of the child, the man should ensure that the child is fully cared for.

Regarding evolutionary psychology, it is no different, men developed differently from women and women developed differently from men.

Throughout history, men have taken a leadership and confrontational position, and so men have developed more skills such as: honor; companionship; empathy for members of their group and apathy for those who are not from their group; and imposingness. Women have developed more skills such as: diction; spontaneity; empathy (without exceptions); and manipulation techniques. It is logical that one will not have the same skills as the other and, in some cases, will have a decrease in them.

Purity is already something that is scarce in women and men today, because it was convenient for corporate leaders to make people impure and without deep notions about sex, because this destroys the concept of freedom and, as a consequence, the tradition of each people, forming a mass of non-thinking degenerates who disregard the consequences of their actions, as well as having no sense of right and wrong, moral and immoral, beneficial and not beneficial. The lack of purity has resulted in a hedonistic life, where people do everything to alleviate their suffering like a slum donkey, becoming even dumber and even more slum-dwelling and with their addiction to momentary pleasures multiplied.

And all of this that I have said is what the left defends and advocates directly and indirectly, because leftist thought desperately tries to change everything that, in its eyes, denigrates the group it defends. Terms that were once common, such as mulatto, mixed-race, "faggot", black and others, are now considered unacceptable by leftists, even if they only characterize a group. They see evil in anything that reveals what a group really is, because they feel that people from such a group are inferior to people who are not part of it. After all, it is something simple: Why would a faggot be ashamed of being called a faggot, when he really is one? The logical conclusion is that he feels inferior.

The leftist is strongly linked to the feeling of inferiority and tries to justify this feeling with accusations of abuse exerted upon him by a person or a group of people. With this also comes hatred for everything that does not feel inferior, everything that is strong, that, theoretically, is not attacked these days - theoretically because it is hidden from the population that many groups are attacked - and from there comes hatred for whites, hatred for Christians, hatred for third-wayists, hatred for the right-wing, those who protect themselves and others. Given these facts, it becomes logical why values are being inverted, just as it is becoming immoral to be moral.

And I'm not accusing minorities for this act, even though a large part of them also practice it, I'm referring to leftists in general and their growing victimization and censorship of our own vocabulary. They want to discredit groups and integrate them into the group of white, cis men, blatantly tearing away their individuality while the fools from the middle class and below are easily fooled by this discourse. The fact is: (((They))) don't want their group to be more valued, they want your mind.

Leftists are one of the largest groups of maneuvers that has ever existed. They are easily influenced because their enormous victimhood makes anyone who defends them seem like a true hero, totally glorifying any corporation that apparently shares their ideas. Western companies are experts in this, especially those that are in some way associated with politics or journalism.

Businessmen see everything as an opportunity to make money, all their social actions have ulterior motives and take advantage of the population by increasing their monopoly. The food market itself, which should be basic, simple and healthy, undermines the health of anyone who dares to eat one of their artificially selected products.

“Natural” foods have undergone so many centuries of artificial selection by the agricultural industry that the way your body reacts to them is completely different, simply because It's not the same food. The soy found in most foods is not the same soy that was found 300, 200 and 100 years ago. Its damage to the human body has increased exponentially as its structure has been adapted by farmers. The foods you eat thinking they are normal are poisons and are destroying your body, your mind, your hormonal cycle and many other areas. And what leaves me incredulous is how every media outlet ignores this and makes absurd conclusions about it, since it is statistically and medically proven that soy increases estrogen and lowers testosterone in a harmful way.

Companies saying that soy will bring you good benefits is like someone saying that pure alcohol cleanses your body of impurities, therefore, you should drink pure alcohol, and that is ridiculous, it is simply disgusting.

It is quite convenient for the markets and the media that soy and its evils become increasingly more important, so why do you expect them to tell you what soy really is? Well, I will do the job of telling you what they are hiding from you. Soy is a highly estrogenic food, which lowers your testosterone levels and increases your estrogen levels, and when consumed long term in men: causes irreversible damage to their hippocampus and other areas of the brain, damage to fertility, damage to mood and temperament, physical structure and, consequently, to their strength. In women: changes in temperament, dysmenorrhea, precocious puberty, infertility, highly increased uterine bleeding and thelarche. I will not go into more technical details because this is a manifesto about politics, not medicine.

The owners of large companies will continue to profit off of us with their products, websites and apps. We have to see the owners of this market as they really are, people who do not care about how their products affect their customers, who have no empathy for the people and who enslave us and see us as a source of money, so it is up to us alone to antagonize this monopoly. They are capitalist men who see us as chess pieces, and in capitalism, people who rise economically in society step on the heads of others without any remorse and then subject them to degrading working conditions.

Workers have been increasingly abused by employers. They are being replaced by machines and when they get a job, they receive a ridiculous salary working in degrading conditions, where they can only get a job that requires manual labor.

They still control the media and the banks, having total control over each country and what that nation may or may not know, they completely distort the news so that they can benefit economically from it, they still use our money against the population, bringing down the economy of any country that goes against their wishes.

The media, the bankers, the “minorities”, the leftists and the Jews are also part of this system. Their minds are perverse and their mouths are dirty and full of lies. They manipulate all the people with their thousands of companies, to do this, they monopolize the market making our only option to buy from them, making them even richer and financing their atrocities against the very people who buy their products so much.

Our money, our nation's money, which we have worked to conquer, must be in our hands, not in the hands of the bankers who abuse the people's lack of reaction and conformity. The capitalist men who control my money and YOURS can overthrow any country, any nation, any people who oppose them. They have the power to create the financial chaos that devastates all of our people. Our nation, under no circumstances, should accept this abuse that we have all suffered for centuries and centuries, under no circumstances should it accept bowing its head to the Jewish bankers who use our money against us.

Not content with just that, the Jews still control the media that deceives us so much. They are the owners and presenters of this system that deceives the nation, insisting on their veiled malicious ideas that distort everything that happens in the world, but I say, just as we must have power over our money, we must also have access to the truth. We, Brazilians, above all and anything, we must have knowledge about what happens inside and outside our country.

With unity, we can defeat the Zionist plague, defeat social inequality, defeat the liberals and finally, for the first time, rise up. With unity, our people will finally be able to stop the suffocation we are suffering. As Brazilians, we must fight for freedom and stop serving the Jews.

About the Brazilian right.

The Brazilian right still has primitive concepts of the country's current problems, not paying attention to the economy's flaws and worrying about problems that have already been extinguished, such as the threats of socialism to Brazil, which have already been contained and socialism/communism has already been completely antagonized by Brazilians, becoming a joke to everyone.

There is still the current president, who most right-wing people support, who takes advantage of conservatism to promote his image, makes false promises in every speech, claims to be in favor of traditionalism, has had failed marriages where he cheated on his partner, is mentally unbalanced, explodes with rage like a rabid mongrel at every conference and knows nothing about economics. He behaves like a spoiled and lying brat, he is just another ignorant Brazilian elderly man with a room temperature IQ. However, if we had to choose between this man and the real left-wing gangs, I think he is the least harmful option for our country, and it is very sad to think that we cannot choose our leader because he is the best, but because he is the least bad.

As for the other right-wing politicians, they are, for the most part, dogs that bark but don't bite, who make promises and don't deliver, just like our current leader. They only take some initiative when they are severely pressured by the people, and when they should be working for a better Brazil, they are fueling intrigues with other equally mediocre politicians.

Conclusion about left and right:

The left and the right put us in a comical war of parties, their forms of economy are all flawed, some more and some less, both have the same result, a flawed economy, and sometimes even inapplicable, they are mere drafts that ignore much, if not completely, the nationalist logistics, that is, the two paths are imperfect, which suggests a third way that does not ignore national thoughts and that does not feed the social inequality that today is abysmal.

Nationalism defends the interests of the nation, arguing that each nation should be governed by itself. After all, no one knows more about what the nation needs than the nation itself, which in nationalism is intrinsically linked to the state.

Chapter 2: The economy, the nation and the state.

The economy has rarely been well applied. Above all, it should be the nation's tool for structuring and organizing its society, and therefore, it should serve the people, never the other way around. However, this is not what happens today. We suffer social inequality and state abuses as a result of a poorly designed form of economy, in which even the most foolish can see its flaws.

Capitalism uses the simple to further enrich those who are already at the top of the social pyramid through a Kafkaesque system, and we rarely see the rise of workers. And don't you dare say that this is meritocracy, because meritocracy says that every individual can become rich just with their physical and psychological abilities without the support or help of anyone. However, this can only be applied if it is considered that all individuals have the same monetary, physical and psychological condition, and is therefore inapplicable, since capitalism created the social abyss that we are suffering from. It was the invention of the rich to make them even richer, leaving workers even poorer, with rare exceptions in which the worker achieves a reasonable quality of life or even a low quality of life.

acceptable. It also favors monopoly, where the company that stands out buys its competitors, thus the company's demand increases and, logically, the price of its products increases while their quality decreases, because if there is no competition, there is no one to surpass in terms of product quality.

There is still the utopian daydream of the left, which is flawed even on paper, and which is nothing more than a phantom and ignores the law of supply and demand. It is like an isolated skeleton, with no tendons, muscles or organs, and therefore cannot stand up or perform any other function. Socialism sinned in its liberal thinking, forgetting nationalist thoughts and going down anti-national paths; Marxism sinned in reducing socialism to a mere question of wages and products, harming the sovereignty of the leader and even threatening his existence. By understanding these two sins, we can redefine socialism with a nationalist purpose, eliminating its many flaws and turning it into something constructive for the nation and the state.

Thus, it is possible to build a nation that does not need exports, does not have social inequality, does not suffer from interest and debts with other countries, does not need to charge taxes from its population, and maintains its structure with the profits from state-owned constructions. The scheme that transformed Germany, which was devastated by war, into one of the world's greatest powers can be put into practice here in Brazil and in any other country where the nation understands that National Socialism is an economy like any other, that has no color or race.

Jews say that National Socialism is nothing more than veiled extremism, but I can say with certainty that National Socialist Germany would never have become the only country to achieve 0% unemployment in the history of the world if these fallacies were true. The deaths that occurred during World War II were the result of mismanagement and the Allies themselves bombing places with concentration camps, and the ones that did not occur were invented by the Jews to once again victimize their people, even when it is mathematically impossible to reach the death toll proposed by them. Even the Soviets, who had real killing machines, compete with the number that the German National Socialists magically achieved.

And there are still those who defend democracy tooth and nail, even though this system favors the election of a president or deputy to become a mere exchange of favors. We vote for the one who seems least bad in this comical war between parties and we wait for 4 years for him to thank us for it, and while we continue in the same mediocre situation as in the other terms, he is on a luxurious ship spending his money to drink the oldest wine and eat the most delicious lobster.

In National Socialism, party wars do not occur, because the national leader is appointed for life and only receives such a position with the approval of the population, being instructed by unions where there are ordinary people who understand the needs of the people. National Socialism puts an end to this system where the top of the pyramid decides for the nation, as well as to the dependence on exports, where investments are made in the country's agriculture so that we can be self-sustainable, gradually closing the market to foreigners who get rich because of our lack of resources, which is totally applicable in a place like Brazil, considering that the Brazilian soil is extremely rich and we still allow foreigners to exploit it. It also puts an end to monopolies, limiting entrepreneurs to a reasonable number of branches, taking away their permission to close down competing companies and small businesses, which are so important to culture.

As if this were not enough, there is still the creation of new corporations to make life easier for the producer and the consumer, eliminating the intermediaries that distribute the product with the creation of a corporation that does the same, thus making trade profitable and increasing the demand for products, making a salary adjustment for workers possible.

The national socialist state is corporatist, divided into state corporations operated by ordinary people, such as consumers, farmers and traders. It differs from Marxism in that the state does not coordinate industry; the only intervention the state makes in industry is to establish limits within which industry can operate, thus favoring the well-being of the nation. We differ from socialism in that we want the good of the nation, allowing and encouraging private property, as long as it enriches the nation, as well as the integration of women into business, religious freedom and, above all, equality.

The exponential growth of unemployment also comes from the rationalization and applied science in companies, causing the industry to produce more and more with fewer workers. Thus, becoming an ever-larger empire, with more branches that buy their competitors, building a giant empire, thus lowering the quality of its products and increasing their prices. Industry has become a monopoly that suffocates small businesses, being a burden to the people. Industrial society and its future is something that must be contained, and only the state has the power to set limits on it.

The current industry constantly commits atrocities against third world countries, where their nation is literally enslaved, including children. They deforest all our wealth, steal our resources uncontrollably and use our labor to further expand their market. I would even go so far as to say that what we are suffering is similar to the terror of the colonies. Foreign businessmen are using and abusing what they can and can get here in Brazil. We are seen as a mere source of raw materials and labor.

It was because of the irresponsibility and lack of empathy of foreigners that today we have slums all over Brazil, we have an absurd rate of "digenics", we have a huge social gap and we have wars between factions that kill good men every day. The Brazilian population has also become a disgrace, after all, the consequences of all these problems directly affect IQ and Brazilian culture. And I know that many are now thinking that IQ is superficial, however, it determines how peaceful and how much professional success the population will have.

Knowing this, National Socialism proposes a project that would take years, no, decades, to be completed, in order to end the problem of the favelas in Brazil and that can only be put into practice when our country reaches a certain level of economic success. It consists of 4 phases:

- 1- The favelas will be divided into sections, after which the inhabitants of the sections will be transported by a transport system organized for this purpose to housing built by the state that will be in a place far from the favela in question, and there, they will reside until the problem of the favelas is resolved;
- 2- The first section of the favela will be demolished shortly after it is completely unoccupied;
- 3- The space where there used to be a favela will be redesigned and subdivided to build new residences;
- 4 The now habitable space will be handed over again to the population and the housing built by the state will be vacated for the inhabitants of the future demolished favelas;

I can't estimate how many years it would take to deal with all of Brazil's favelas, much less how many leaders we would have to go through in this process. That's why I emphasize the importance of unions, because they are the ones who will hold the government accountable and instruct it. It's also clear that there would be a major war within our country. In fact, there is already a major war in our country, where gangs kill scores of our citizens and constantly commit atrocities against children and anyone else who might enrich them. What the bill proposes is to put an end to this war with heavy weapons, eliminating the criminals and the degenerates who support them without even giving them time to defend themselves.

But I think there is a nagging question that many are asking themselves.

“What about dictatorship and our freedom?”

I affirm to all of you who are reading this manifesto that never in the history of Brazil will there be a period in which the people will have as much freedom and participation in the decisions of the leader as in the NS government. National Socialism is a leader, but never, ever tyrannical, and any government that calls itself NS that harms its people in any way is nothing more than a tyrant that must be overthrown.

We will have more freedom than we do today, because we have never seen any results from those we elected. We have been deceived by false promises, but I propose an end to this system that disadvantages the population and takes away their freedom. However, this would only happen if the population agreed with our system, which would be difficult because everyone has already had their minds washed by Jewish leaders and are doomed to find themselves in the situation the country is in.

"And what about the racism that National Socialism preaches"

The idea that National Socialism is linked to racism is a big lie that has been told by Jews ever since our Führer left. The most that National Socialism preaches about this is ethnocentrism, where the country's race is protected as much as possible, keeping the violent hands of immigrants away from those who built their own country, something I agree with, considering that immigrants are currently weakening the economy of nations and committing more crimes than men who were born in their own country.

The powers that be have set aside their own nation's problems in order to, in a failed attempt, solve another nation's problem. They expected to be thanked with manpower, but instead they have received hungry mouths that kill for peanuts, destroy the country's original race through miscegenation, rape and commit other sexual crimes.

Logically, you can leave the racial part of the "thing" aside, considering that it takes place in a country like Brazil, since we do not have a defined "color". Brazil is ridiculously mixed and multicultural, which weakens the unity of the people, given that we cannot see each other as equals, because we do not share the same culture and/or history.

All of this brings us to the issue of separatism, since each region of the country has its own color and culture, which, in turn, strengthens the unity of that specific people, because they share more similarities. In this case, I think it has to be something that needs to be discussed a lot, because whether we like it or not, we are all Brazilians, and Brazilian soil belongs to Brazilians. But it would be very unfair to invalidate separatism for this reason, since there is no unity among the Brazilian people, much less anything significantly in common between the people of each region. Therefore, we reach the consensus that we do not see each other as similar depending on the region; on the contrary, there is a relationship of intrigue and prejudice.

After raising these points and knowing that most Brazilian regions would not be able to sustain themselves, I propose a solution:

1-Nationalism would be encouraged like never before everywhere, where there would be country flags on all buildings, advertisements and books, becoming a mandatory subject in school;

2-Racialism would be fundamental in studies, where each child would understand the value of their race and learn to preserve it;

3-The subject of ethics and citizenship would be mandatory at school, so that, in addition to gaining a great knowledge about their own race and nation, children would learn to respect those who are different.

And with these 3 steps, nicknamed The 3 Steps of Education, each culture of each region would be preserved without any threat and without the need to leave its cradle, an action that, if applied, weakens the region itself and Brazil as a whole.

In this system, economic problems would be solved, therefore, there would be no economic reason to fuel separatism.;The race and culture of each people would be preserved without the need for separatism; The people would learn to respect other Brazilians of different cultures and races. And, with all these factors, separatism would become obsolete, so that all Brazilian states could enjoy the good economy, security, services and education that National Socialism has to offer.

Chapter 3: DIE JEW!

It is no surprise that Jews control the media, banks and social networks. Even though they represent a relatively small portion of the world's population, they are the biggest millionaires and business owners. All this power is concentrated in the hands of just one ethno-religious group, holding nations hostage.

They even control the pornographic media, which is involved in child prostitution, rape, mafias and kidnappings, where a simple click is enough to finance these atrocities. The Jews control our lives more and more, as their monopoly grows.

exponentially and every company, competent or not, is bought by them.

And the problem with the Jews is not only these, but also their religion, which preaches and advocates that Jews commit robbery, rape, discrimination and pedophilia against non-Jews. And if you doubt what I'm talking about, do a 20-second web search on the controversial passages of the Talmud and the Torah, which, despite containing outdated and violent ideas, are taken seriously by Jews to this day. It's no wonder they were expelled from dozens of countries.

being linked to sects where children were kidnapped and abused, and since the creation of the ethno-"state" of Israel, several massacres and conflicts over religion have been financed by it.

The big issue is that even though Jews are a small part of the world's population, they are linked to everything that is bad. They prove themselves more and more worthy of aversion, but they do everything they can to hide this from the people. They are linked to so many abominations that to list them all, I would need to write an entire series of books about them, and even if I pointed out all the proof of what I say, I would still be called anti-Semitic and prejudiced.

The reason I listed all of these facts is so that you know who is in control of much of the media and banking, so that you can see how dangerous this "clique" can be. These are the men who have absolute power in this world, these are the men who have the power to overthrow anyone who rebels against them, and ironically, these are the same men who have been victimizing themselves since before the birth of Christ.

They are the ones who are truly prejudiced. They are the ones who commit war crimes against non-Jews, shoot non-Jewish children without warning, violate 77 UN resolutions between 1951 and 1992, massacre volunteers of the Freedom Flotilla, use banned chemical weapons against civilians, accuse Palestinians of simply refusing to leave their homes as terrorists, destroy more than four thousand Palestinian tribes, expel more than seven hundred thousand Palestinians from their tribes, destroy six UN settlements and hospitals, distort history to make themselves look like victims, torture witnesses to make them say whatever they want, promote massacres in the East, modify books to promote their own image or boycott the image of others, abuse children in their religious services, and yet, according to them, they are the victims.

However, I don't want you to believe me, I want you to seek the truth of everything I just said, I just ask that you don't look for it in Jewish sources.

Chapter 4: Technologies.

Man has always feared that technology would take his place in society, that artificial intelligence would replace him because his jobs would become obsolete, but this has long since become a reality. Before, to communicate with a friend or relative who was far away, we had to write letters and wait almost a week, if not more, to get a response from the recipient. Now, we can talk to people in other states and even in other countries with a message that takes a fraction of a second to be delivered.

News media has become almost entirely digital, and now the printed newspaper is obsolete, as is a typewriter, a telephone booth, and sometimes human knowledge.

Some time ago, you were quite well-known if you could write well, were creative, intelligent or/and good at math. However, knowledge has been devalued by comparison with the rest of the world facilitated by the web. Your knowledge is devalued because it has been replaced by AI.

What's the point of being the best artist on your street, in the eyes of the observer, when compared to countless artists with talent equal to or greater than yours? There is no surprise in their art, there is nothing that we have not seen before, because we have a collection of art that we can access at any time. The information that the new generation has is enormous, because we have access to the internet at such an early age, it is suffocating the speed at which everything spreads, like the "laws" that we must follow to become someone politically correct, while traditional things are lost in amidst all this hurricane of news. Headlines like "Look at this, X person did such and such!", "You should stop using these terms!" are growing exponentially, we are undergoing such a huge change that it is impossible to situate ourselves in this avalanche of news.

The distortion of our language is a subversion of its purpose of facilitating communication. Therefore, when a subject prohibits or controls the language of others, he betrays both freedom and his intention of being easy, useful and fast. When such action is taken by the state, it is even more unacceptable. It is a clear demonstration of censorship, and this also happens today, since we cannot criticize the lying Jews of the Supreme Court and other equally or more terrorist groups who proclaim themselves to be great democratic men who build the republic that, on paper, is to fulfill the will of the people.

Nowadays, one does not need legitimate knowledge to be considered intelligent/intellectual, since any statement does not need to be substantiated or even based on axioms to appear to be innovative. Celebrities use straw man fallacies to paint their enemies (who refuse to give them their money) as evil, and people have forgotten that logic is something intrinsic to any argument.

The people are made of cogs by the system, to the point that our children are reduced to numbers on paper and our adults to salaries, and anything that deviates from this is considered subversive and disgusting, not by the State, but by the people themselves. However, if the people become sovereign over the State, the system, whatever it may be, breaks down. And this shows that the unity of the people is greater and stronger than the claws of the State, and at the same time highlights that one man alone is not capable of defeating it.

All of this ends up in a lack of purpose, as our skills and our intellectual load are no longer valued or taken into account, and everything is heading towards us being completely replaced by machines. A while ago, there was a lot of action in our lives, we had a purpose, but today we live in a dull routine, where all we have to do is go to work to support ourselves, and so that we don't go crazy, we can enjoy the entertainment industry that is maintained thanks to this whole situation.

Work is gradually being rationalized, with large companies replacing workers with machines, while simultaneously taking away space from micro-enterprises, which are precisely the remaining alternative for workers. In short, large companies are sucking the vitality out of our nation, and only the state can stop this process.

Schools do nothing for the intellectual growth of students, they only test their memory and production capacity. They contribute little to the spiritual and mental growth of any individual. Quite the contrary. Their current function is to be a tool of the State to turn its children into desperate adults, alienated by anything the State finds convenient. Progressive ideas that make our men oversocialized will be increasingly shown to our children by schools - as well as other tools of the State - so that the average Brazilian individual will not be able to think about anything beyond the ideas presented to him when he was young, and when exposed to something traditional, he will deny it as if it were the great evil of humanity, when, in reality, the great evil of society is hiding behind scripts, parliamentary buildings and colorful flags, and has controlled and controls it throughout its pitiful existence.

All of this will culminate in an adult with little intellectual capacity and incapable of questioning attitudes, the archetype of a man made only for the profit of his superiors, the archetype of a common man of a dystopia. And this is so that the common people can do the State's job of decimating the traditional and spreading its subversive ideas - the same ones discussed in the previous paragraph - so that the people themselves destroy themselves, as well as their history and ideals.

Few people are aware today of how dirty the State is, and this will only be noticed - if it is noticed at all - when it is too late, as it fuels conflicts.

among his people so that we forget who our true enemy is. He forbids everything that threatens his existence, distorts the meanings and ideas of what can defeat him, and to make this clearer to visualize, think of all the hate crimes that have become in the last 70 years that carry a shallow and little understood meaning. The crime of saying something is the most obvious demonstration of censorship, and it will become more and more extensive with more and more ramifications, while the punishments for them will become more and more inhumane. Think, reader, is it fair that a man who uttered mere words against a group should be thrown into a room with rapists, murderers, pedophiles and others?

The current state deprives us of access to books, talking about government elites, carrying flags and symbols, and anything that goes against these prohibitions is an attack on democracy, and under the current constitution, Brazil cannot be called democratic. If Brazil is democratic, why am I arrested for accusing a politician of being a bad person? Why can't I support X form of economy without being arrested? Why can't I tell the truth about the men in power? The truth is that democracy has its foundations rusty and eventually collapses wherever it is applied and tends to turn into a tyrannical regime. The greatest example of how democracy and liberal thinking lead to subjugation is the current situation in France, where natives of their own country are subjected to physical, verbal and structural abuse by immigrants.

The other main tool of those in power - in this case, not the State - is social media, and there has never been a tool in history with such a capacity to steal the minds of so many people. Imagine the scenario from a more technical perspective: You are looking at your feed on social media, your mind is completely focused on that when, out of nowhere, you are interrupted by an advertisement. It is logical that this will enter your thoughts with the greatest ease, the algorithm knows which is the best advertisement and the best time for it to be shown.

shown, and this applies to anything he wants to show you, be it a sneaker, a series or a device, and, again, this will come in very easily thanks to how vulnerable your brain is to information in that situation.

The algorithm of these social networks is the closest thing to the antichrist that humanity has managed to create, because it has no honor, no concepts of right or wrong, all it has is one goal, and that goal is to steal your time and your mind. If you think that the main goal is money, you are naive, because this stopped being a battle for material goods a long time ago. It does want money, but in this case, money is just a tool to keep the machine running until they achieve the real goal, you. I don't mean you as your body or your services, I mean you as a whole, because they want your life for themselves, and by "for themselves" I mean: Believing in what they want, doing what they order, being addicted to what they find convenient, worrying about distractions, living a disgusting, poor, needy and, simply, abominable life.

I will mention the giant Netflix here, as it is a clear example of how monetary goals are no longer a priority. Netflix has never, in its entire existence, made satisfactory profits for its owners; its losses only get bigger, while its content becomes increasingly putrid. A tremendous failure, isn't it? No, Netflix is a calamitous success, and much bigger than you can imagine. Netflix's profit, in money, is shameful, but its profit on other people's minds is abysmal. It was never about money, and it will never be about money, because they already have that.

You are in a trance, in the greatest trance that has ever been reported, you are being domesticated and you don't care about it. A robot created by evil people is extorting all of you, and it is not asking for money, it is asking for your conscience, and you simply do not care, or pretend not to care. Whether you like it or not, this algorithm is evil, and its purpose is to deceive you, or do you really think that it is?

Were humans made to eat processed foods, sitting and lying down most of the day while looking at a screen?

If you think that the situation of being deprived of internet, manufactured foods, access to abominations and others, is bad, it is because you do not know even 10% of the opposite situation - I am not inferring here that people should be prohibited from these items -, but they should.

And the damage from all this is not only mental, but also genetic, to the point that I do not believe that we are still Homo Sapiens Sapiens, but rather a subgroup of this, the group that went through centuries and centuries of domestication and that had its evolution retarded by the countless difficulties imposed on those genetically blessed by the Jews. The natural talents given to man by nature were rendered useless, and now, skills that were once essential for survival and reproductive control are no longer essential; what counts is their ability to adapt to the norms of a company in order to earn a living in return. I assure you that this process is similar to the artificial selection carried out on dogs and other animals, and, as is common knowledge, it is known that such changes were more than harmful to them, and it is no different for all of us. And don't tell me that it is unfair to compare these two situations, because artificial selection is equally severe in all animals, be it a pug, a rat, an ant or even a plant.

A pug was transformed from a beautiful, healthy, and proportionate animal into a freak condemned to suffer for the rest of its life in 200 years, and all of this was caused by people who thought they were superior, by people who were lucky from birth and who didn't care one bit about the natural order of things, and guess what group fits that exact description these days? We are the victims this time, and the evildoer still infers that we should abandon our natural diet, we should lock ourselves in huge buildings and other monuments to nothingness, we should completely abandon our natural habitat, we should abandon our customs and traditions, etc. And this is working for them, because now we are weaker, we have crooked teeth, we have a smaller frontal lobe, we have vision problems, we are dumber, more depressed, more stressed and more uncultured.

They forced us out of our natural environment to live in eternal torment, now we have more suicides, more stress, more cases of depression, more anxiety, more wars, more hunger, more everything bad you can imagine than when we lived in rural areas and small villages, because this is simply unnatural and it is as if you forced a chimpanzee to live in a cage without grass and without trees, without its natural food, only with rewards for work and screens.

What I can suggest to get out of this is to completely free yourself from these types of devices and places. You don't need a cell phone, you don't need to live breathing smoke, you don't need any of this stuff they made you believe, you just believe it because it's convenient for them. Move to a rural area with your family and have a tool to defend yourself, and above all, make your children lucid, and remember: Happiness, when possible, truth, above all.

To close one's eyes to this situation is to agree with it, to devoutly accept that they succeed, and I am very, very sorry to tell you that there is no peaceful way to fight this. Nothing short of a real war can change our situation, and if you think that they will not hurt you if you try to be peaceful, you are naive. There are many cases in which innocent people have been killed trying to escape the terror that they imposed, and it will be no different with anyone else who tries to do the same, so, in view of this, react! Do not give flowers to those who have a gun pointed at the head of the entire world population, who control the minds of all nations and have more power than the leaders of great nations, respond to their evil acts and, if you are to be defeated, at least have the honor of dying fighting.

This is causing such damage to us that nowadays it is normal to be addicted to an electronic device, and anyone who is not addicted to such devices is considered outdated and lacking in technology. The problem is that these devices are being pushed onto children at an increasingly early age, and children under the age of 6 already have access to pornographic content and adult content in general, and are already used as a source of money, are hypnotized with hours and hours of advertisements, are taught by bad people about sensitive topics that only the child's own parents should talk about with them. This is brainwashing, our children are being overdosed with information, their minds are being built to they and with they. Topics about honor, sexuality, gender issues and values should be passed down from father to son, which does not happen today, because these topics are almost never matured by father for son, they are matured by the internet for the son, and the content that the internet has about these topics is always poorly explained, misinformed and put together to be convenient for Jews. Your son will be an eternal spoiled child if you keep giving him a cell phone to shut up, he will always have distorted notions about the world, because the idea of a colorful fantasy has always been fed into his brain, and if your son one day shoots with a gun pressed against his own skull, it was you who pulled the trigger.

Society is sick, it is addicted and suffers the damages of this addiction constantly. In 2009, the Internet really exploded, it became a craze, and, not coincidentally, it was when the suicide rates among pre-teen girls rose, in some countries, by just over 151%. And this is what happens when a child is bombarded with information, she becomes fragile, fragmented and confused. When you insist on saying that if a girl gives a little kiss to her friend when she is still a child, she automatically becomes a lesbian, you are telling this child that she is part of a minority, that she is different from others and that she will never be normal, and she believes this, she thinks that something so silly how this can change who she is, and it will bring so many consequences, it will bring so many mental problems that it will become reality.

Chapter 5: Is There Salvation?

This war can only be won with a true revolution, a huge initiative taken by Brazilians, and you will be shocked when I say that the only tool that can free us from all this is violence, but what should you do when they brainwash the entire population, when they prepare our children to be born and grow up sick, and when they take away our freedom to fight them in a civilized manner? War has already been declared and is happening now, and you are doing nothing to defend yourselves, so I call on the young people, defend yourselves! Shoot or be shot.

This is far beyond debates and protests, because only our offensive reaction can stop them. It has become forbidden to speak out against it, it has become forbidden to teach our children and it has become forbidden to be free, so it is time to show that we will not accept this so easily, we will not be manipulated to such a level without any reaction. Brave will be the one who persists in fighting until his death, because the most faithful and honorable soldier is the one who, even with the war lost, continues to face the enemy. The most grounded will be the one who, even with the mockery, lies and insults in his name and in the name of what he defends, persists in fighting.

And I warn the media, the more you lie about us and what we stand for, the more of us will become saints, and one day we will come for you, because your actions have consequences.
